. Location and Size

- Werneth Low Country Park is located 15km (9½ miles) east of the city centre of Manchester on the edge of the Pennines. All the land in the Country Park is in the Borough of Tameside. The town of Hyde, along with the villages of Gee Cross and Newton, are just 2.5km (1½ miles) away to the west.
- The Country Park consists of approximately 81 hectares (200 acres) of hilltop and hillside.

Ownership

- 60 hectares (150 acres) belong to the Hyde War Memorial Trust, including the Visitor Centre building. Tameside Metropolitan Borough Council owns the remaining 21 hectares (50 acres) of land in the Park.

Creation of the Country Park

- The Country Park was officially established in 1980 when the Hyde War Memorial Trust and Tameside MBC and the Greater Manchester Council entered into a formal agreement relating to the management of the park. Responsibilities relating to the Greater Manchester County Council were passed on to Tameside MBC in 1986 when the County Council was abolished.

Vision for Werneth Low Country Park

- The Vision for Werneth Low Country Park is of a place where landscape and nature conservation and informal countryside recreation are in balance. It is a place where natural beauty is enhanced, where wildlife will thrive, and where visitors, regardless of their ability or background, can spend an enjoyable and fulfilling time. It is a place that is cared for and looked after, not just for now but for future generations.

Overall Aims

Country Park Overall Aims:

- To manage the Country Park in a way that sustains and improves the quality and variety of its wildlife and landscape, and where recreation activity is in harmony with this.
- To facilitate access for all, irrespective of ability or background.
- To manage the Country Park for its cultural and historic importance.
- To engender an understanding of the various aspects of the Country Park through programmes of lifelong learning.
- To provide a high quality service to visitors, involving them in decision making about how the Country Park is run.
- To maintain a safe and health environment, befitting the Country Park.

Greenspace Service Priorities

The general management aims are supported by the Tameside Greenspace Service Priorities:

- Improving the quality of Greenspace for residents.
- Building capacity amongst Friends Groups and Volunteers.
- Conserving the natural environment and increasing biodiversity.
- Maximising opportunities to improve the health of all residents.
- Developing opportunities to bring in external funding.
